DO ZOOS CAUSE MORE HARM THAN GOOD?

We humans love animals. We love watching them feeding their babies, watching their babies growing up, watching them hunting etc. We even feed them ourselves in our houses. But as far as I and many others know we don't hurt something or someone we love. So why is this zoo craziness, atrocity getting more popular day by day? Zoos have been 'fun' places to visit on Sundays. When we go there it takes a couple of hours to see the animals and take some photos. I, myself, used to love to do that at least once a year. But as you get older and got the chance to search how this actually works:It's just disgusting. Do you know how people capture those animals?

Let me tell you! They kill the mother first and of course babies don't leave their mom because you know, they are babies. Then boom! They got captured. They don't even know what is going on. And probably their lives will be an actual misery. It sounds dramatic, I know because it is dramatic as I wrote and even more. And that's only one example. In a zoo in Eskişehir in 2017, a raccoon got caught in electrical wires for minutes. If you make a small search to take a look at some zoos in other countries you'd find out that they're so much worse. Of course it's not a competition but just because it's not happening here, a lot of people are not aware how serious the situation is. Not just zoos; aqua parks, circuses, even houses. I know that just because I wrote this whole thing all of a sudden zoos are not gonna be shut down but I want you to change your mindset about those 'fun' Sundays. Treat those animals how you wish to be treated!
